Haunted by his Sweetheart.

In the western part of this county, says a letter from Harrodsburg, Ky., is located an old village by the name of Duncansville. In this village and vicinity live a plain and industrious people who vie one with another in acts of kindness and hospitality. Among these good people lives a Rev. G. W. It being Sunday—a solemn day in the country—these two lovers strayed to the country graveyard. There, at the graves of their parents, they promised to be forever true to each other. In one year they were to be married, and they promised, in were to be married, and they promised, in the event one should die, the other was bound to live in a state of cellbacy. On this holy day, and upon the tombs of departed parents, they made this solemn vow:

We would request all who desire to take advantage of this opportunity to some as some as wife, and if I should die before you return my spirit will ever attend you."

Hoover left next morning and soon reached his destination at the head of steamboat navigation on the St. Croix river. For tea menths not a wave of trouble rolled across his peaceful breast. One sight after he had been sleeping for several hours in his room at the Peterson House he was awakened by breeze passing over him as if made by a wing. On opening his eyes he beheld an object in the room. By the dim light of the moon be recognized his sweetheart. As she threw her arms about his neck she vanished PERRY, SMOOT & CO.

the spirit land, having died on the very night he had seen her apparition.

After working hard for two years his business was so prosperous that he determined to visit the scenes of his childhood. While there he met a Miss Catherine Larder, of Missouri. She was as handsome as his old sweetheart, but not so large and fine looking. Again Cupid got in his work, and looking. Again Cupid got in his work, and they were soon engaged. On the morning of June 21, 1887, they married, and started immediately for the husband's home in Wisconsin. In the course of time they arrived at St. Croix Falls, and Mr. Hoover conducted his young wife to his apartments in the Peterson House. The light had hardly been extinguished when a breeze was felt to pass over the bed, and as he turned to face his wife a cold hand touched his face, and a cream from his wife was heartrending. As he affrighted man arose from his bed to light a lamp he beheld an apparition of his old sweetheart fade from view and observed his wife lying beside the bed in a dead

A similar scene occurred every night for at least two weeks. They left the hotel and rented a house near the river and set up housekeeping. Here the apparition ap peared more frequently. It never failed to separate the pair at night, and constantly made its presence known to the wife during

For nearly three weeks the spiritual manifestations continued, when the virgin bride would no longer remain with her haunted husband, but returned to her friends at Duncapsville.
